Alkhorayef Group

Praise is to The Almighty Allah alone, and May His Prayers and Peace Be upon His Apostle Mohammed. In your Name, oh Allah, we begin, and with your straight Holy Book, we rightly be guided, and with your kind-hearted Apostle, we follow. O Lord, guide us to the best sayings and set right our deeds.

In the beginning we would like to welcome you in the first edition of the HR Electronic Bulletin which aims at increasing the communication and culture through keeping the inhabitants regularly aware of the news and accomplishments of the General Administration of the Human Resources and its branches, and as well of the local news of the company. The idea of establishing an electronic bulletin has emerged as a result of the electronic proposals received with the few past months after launching the Admin Development series. In this regard, we have received a suggestion to merge the series of the Admin Development with the section of the internal news of the company that is published in Alkhorayef Electronic Magazine so as to serve as an internal bulletin aimed at the employees only whereas Alkhorayef Hard copy will be subject to re-editing to target external customers, Alkhorayef's community and as well the outside public world.

We have the pleasures to announce to you the good news of launching the project of developing the systems and policies of the HR within the projects' chain to uplift the systems and programs of the whole group and its various companies, and modernizing it as per the visions, and clear strategies that will fulfill the ambitions of Alkhorayef's leadership in placing the companies in the heart of modernized and advanced companies.

The leaders of the group have realized that taking the company to the level of advanced companies can't be achieved without having an entity to lead the operations of development, assume the supervisions operations, draw plans and programs, suggest mechanism and strategies, and owns independency and authorizations that are not conventional which has been incorporated in the HR in its current new shape and formation. In this context, two new administrations under the general admin of HR have been established; one is named the Merit & Compensation Admin and the other is named the Support Services Admin. As well, the project managing the development of HR has been developed and its name and some of its duties have been changed. Now it carries the name of Organizational Development Admin. In the near future, a new department will be established for employment, attracting skills and planning labor force. Thus, the HR Management will have its five wings which are: Personnel Affairs, Organizational Development, Merits and Compensations, Support Services, recruiting and planning the labor force.

As well, a club for HR has been established as an initiative of the General Management of HR. It is set to develop the Human Resources of the group through assembling all the officials of the HR of all companies under one ceiling in order to exchange ideas, experiences and solutions that would elevate the standard of the HR of the group, provide a suitable environment for the growth and flourishing of employees since it is considered the basic support that would shore up the comprehensive development process and the future developing plans. So far, two meetings for exchanging ideas have been held and prior to the procession of the mentioned club.

We cannot but have to thank here the leadership of the group for their sponsorship and support. Finally, we raise our hands to The Almighty Allah to grant His Forgiveness for the headman of Alkhorayef's family, Shiekh Abdurrahman Alkhorayef, and shower him with His Mercy, grant him His Paradise and bless us to complete the process of success.

May The Almighty Allah Be Please With Abdurrahman Alkhorayef.

Chain of Administrative Development

Why does Creation in your work place vanish and not flourish?

Six common and shameful practices you need to get rid of!

You would hardly find a statement of a message that does not post it on its heading, and you would rarely find a manager that does not raise his voice encouraging and praising it. Nevertheless, and despite all the concerns that creation has acquired within the business corporations, the knowledge of people and their understanding for what works out and that does not work in the course of the daily creation in work place, remain at its minimum level and mixed up in unbelievable way.

From where do the piercing thoughts emerge? What is the work environment that allows for its flourishing? What the leaders need to do to maintain inspiration for creation and overcome barriers?

Teresa Amabel , the head of the pioneering admin unit in Harvard University, a researcher whom has spent thirty years of her life in addressing these inquiries. She is known as the only professor of her level that devotes all of her time of researching program to study creation.

Ten years back, Amabell has proceeded with her researches to a new and unmatched level. Working with a team composed of teachers, university students, and managers of different companies, she managed to collect around 12000 titles of daily working journals of 238 personnel working on creative enterprises in seven different companies that operate in the areas of consumables, high-tech and chemicals.

She had never informed the participants in the study that she was focusing on the creation issue. In a simple method, she used to send them daily questions on their jobs and regarding their work environment as they would see and feel it in that special day. Afterwards, she filtered and organized the memorandums targeting the issue of creation by focusing on times when people face or come up with a new idea. In her study of the daily work memorandums, she was enthusiastic on seeing creation in reality. "We wanted to acquire all that goes in the heads of people and dig into it, and understand the specialties and roles of their working environments along with the trials and processes of thoughts that had lead to creative innovative piercings. The researchers are still working on analyzing the results, however, this breaking-through study, since the issuance of its conclusions, managed to turn over and correct so many of the long-lasting constant visions on the issue of creation within the working area.

In an interview with professor Amabelle, she provided us in the following lines with six wide-spreading illusions that are settled in minds. If you want to keep your working environments and places hostile or hampering creation then stay holding to those illusions.

1. Creation only comes from the ingenuity minds.

We need to stop dividing people according to minds and muscles.

Whenever I talk in training sessions and discussions with managers, I tend to open my speech with this question: In what area of your organization you would like to see the spring of creation flowing?

Normally, the answer would be in the areas of researching and development, in marketing, and in advertising. And when I ask about the subject that would not expect to see in it the necessity for the presence of creation, the answer would be the area of accounting. And always that would make the audience break into laughter due to the negative conceptions linked to creative accounting.

But no! This common concept spreading among managers that some people are creative and others are not; or they do not need to be as so is totally wrong. As a leader, you do not want to limit creation in isolated sectors. On the contrary, you want and need that every individual in your organization to be capable of generating new useful ideas; and that to include the employees of the financial section. Actually the world has witness during the past years how the financial accounting has seen the birth of deep-rooted and ethical creation as the “Cost Accounting of the ABCs efficiencies”. The mere truth here is that all the researches in this area have proved that any person with normal level of intelligence is capable of doing a creative job. Creativity depends on a number of trial issues – to include knowledge and technical skills, talent, the ability to think in innovative methods, the ability to get rid of and cross the dry periods and overcome the lack of creation, and the inner driving force resulting from practicing. Therefore, the intrinsic motivation is considered as a very vital requirement and of a special importance. It is noted that the people who do a job that are attracted to and motivates them by its own driving force and for its sake, would mostly does it in a creative way.) However, and despite what I used to see within the last five years of organizations directing a greater attention to creation and innovation more than any other time during my entire career, I believe that most people have not achieved a significant approach in realizing and investing their potential creativities. I also believe that working in environments that hamper intrinsic motivations would form part of this deficiency. Various proofs of observations would suggest that many companies have still long way to go before they would be able to free their working environments of innovations brakes.

2- By Dirham and Dinar the innovation can be inspired and thoughts can be generated.

No. No. Don't push them and don't pay them. Let them rush!

Studies of experimental innovation state that money is not everything. Therefore, what should we focus on to motivate people to work and think in a creative way?

In our study that is based on following the daily activities of work, we've asked people about the extent of motivation that is inspired by financial rewarding? The majority answered that they consider such issue has no important value for them. They don't think of payment every day. A few, who used to spend much time thinking about their allowances, would only devote very little time for the creative thinking. It is realized that allowances and plans of wages that are linked to performance would become sources for troubles when people believe that every action they do would have an effect on their financial compensations. In such a case, people tend to a conduct focused on avoiding taking risks. Of course people need to realize that they are getting fair financial compensations, however, our research explains that people give high regard to be in a creative-working-area where creativity is supported, highly valued, regarded and commended. People would want to be given the opportunity to go deep, to be attached to what they do, and to achieve real progress. Leaders consider achieving conformity between people and projects assigned to them that are not based on their experiences only but on their trends and concerns as well, as a vital requirement. People are more creative when they become subjectively careful of their jobs, unite and expand their own skills. If the challenge is above and over their capabilities, they would fall under distress and become victim for despair. If the challenge is too weak and so remote, they would be subject boredom. Therefore, leaders need to establish and sustain balance in that area.

3- Can we consider time pressure as a fuel for innovation? Not exactly.

In our study of the daily work, we have noted that people consider themselves more innovative when they are obliged to work under the pressure of packed timetable, demanding and strict limitations of time. However, the data we have collected within the 12 days have exhibited contrary results to that concept. The workers were less creative when they were racing with clock to finish their jobs. We have noted some sort of surrendering and collapse under the pressure of time. When workers work under extreme pressure of time, their creations were deteriorating, not only in that day but in the following two days of work as well. The pressure of time hinders the creation in people because they can't be immersed into the issue. Creation requires a period of incubation and to become fully developed. People need time to give thorough thinking of the idea, and let their thoughts come together, grow and be particularized. In reality, the limited time is not the issue but the causes of distraction and diversion that deprive people of the needed time for breakthrough creation. For sure, people would become creative and the sword of time is hanging over their heads, however, that would not happen unless they are capable of focusing on their jobs; and they should be protected against distraction and realize that what they are accomplishing is important and everybody is supporting them. Unfortunately, and in many organizations, people would not justify the call for rush in business other than someone somewhere wanted this job today.

4. Panic Squeezes Ideas.

It is noted in some working areas an idea, widely spreading, that panic and low spirit (distress) can motivate creativity. Some psychic publications suggest that distress is higher in the category of creative people as writers and artists. However, we have not seen that in our practical study.

In the course of searching feelings experienced by employees in a working day, covered by the research, as fear, concern, sorrow, anger, joy, or love of those subjected for the study, we had filtered the 12th material randomly and arrived at the following results:

- Creativity is positively linked with joy and love whereas it is negatively linked with anger, fear, and concern. The data showed that people were in their best happy state when they had come up with an innovative idea. Furthermore, they would be so close to come up with something brilliant if they were happier in the previous day. With regards to the positive feelings interaction, it is noted that there is a repeated good issue when people are enthusiastic to perform their jobs and absolutely believing in them. There is a larger potentiality of success in establishing linking knowledge that would embrace ideas, let them ripen, and allow them to come out in the next day as an innovative idea. Mostly, the joy of a happy day would be pave the way for creation in the very next day.

5. Competition is not stronger than cooperation!

- There is a common belief – particularly within the transforming industry and high-tech projects – that internal competition elevates creativity.

- What have we found with regards to the above in our research of work journal? We have discovered that creation deteriorates and suffers when a group of people in the working places compete against each other's instead of cooperating.

- It is not that the most creative teams are the ones that have trust to share ideas and discuss them between their members. But when people compete for receiving credits for their jobs, they quit sharing information. This will be destructive because no body, in any organization, would be capable to share all the required information to place all the pieces of the puzzle in its correct arrangement.

Remember “Achieving Great Accomplishments Requires Punctual Individuals, who are committed to punctual and well-researched ideas as well as careful and accurate execution.”

Interview with Mr. A'la Ahmed Al-Sanwi General Manager of Information Technology:

1. Briefing on the nature of work of the Admin.

The Admin of IT is a service's admin and plays a major role in the group of the companies where a great part of the advancing of establishments is linked and modern working tools exist. The IT Administration is an important tool that provides the correct information for taking the right and suitable decision in the right time. As well, it helps, directly and indirectly, to improve the skills of the employee by using the most modern programs in different fields along with training.

2. Future Plans Set For Developing The IT Administration.

The IT field is known to be a huge field that includes many activities such as the particular applications set for finance, sales, procurement, warehouses, marketing, manufacturing, programs designed for the Higher Admin, computer nets, maintenance of devices, and electronic mail. Part of the future plans of this Administration is to try to make the utmost use of the applications, improve the time limit set for obtaining information, and be prepared for any future plans for any of the companies of the group...as the transferring of the companies into public companies. Furthermore, it is planned to add some particular programs and applications that are expected to improve the competitive abilities of the group in line with other local and international companies operating in the same field. Also it is taken into consideration to have full effective emergency plans in case of unexpected accidents that may – Allah Forbid – hinder the process of work along with the importance of developing the qualifications of employees working in this administration to suit the size and requirements of the company

3. What's new in the field of IT?

This administration has adopted what is called the "Cloud computing". The companies started going back to the first age of computers when there were huge mainframes that contain programs of many establishments at the same time. Currently, the same idea is applied in a vast usage. Now you could rent a storage area with one of the companies specialized in that field. A service – as managing this storage area by the providing company – has been added against less amount of money. This kind of service is much better than having a separate location set specially for the concerned company. The advantage of such systems is to provide backing copies in other countries or locations to ensure continuity of work without stopping. However, this practice is still facing many challenges pertinent particularly to the privacy and secrecy of the information and with regards to the infrastructure of the communication. I know, currently, there are a lot of large and pioneer companies that are reluctant to use such applications until resolving most of the problems related to the adoption of such systems.

4. The major challenges facing the administration.

Challenges are many, but the most important is the high-speed in developing the software and hardware globally. Thus, what we used to do three years back becomes obsolete now as per the measurement of the information technology market. Therefore, we should always be standing by to continuously update and develop our information system. It should be understood that it is not a matter of modernization so as to keep up with a certain fashion, but in most cases you find that you are forced to cope up with the modernization rhythm otherwise the establishment will be at the risk of being isolated and cut from communicating with the outside world. You could imagine that somebody is working with Windows 3.1 version whereat no available applications or programs to support this version which was issued a few years back.

5. In your opinion, what are the most traits that should be found in the successful distinguished leader?

Sadly in the Arabic World, there is admixture between the manager and the leader. I believe the pointer of success of any section of an establishment is ability to attract talented persons that is acquiring the trait of leadership. Whenever you see a distinct sector within any company, you will find behind it a leader or a person who possessed many of the qualities the leader. In my view the traits of the leader are: Courage, patience, the ability to enter changes, the future vision, the ability to direct and support the team, motivation and inspiring others, bear of responsibility, experience, and giving his subordinates responsible and rationed freedom that would allow them to be creative.

6. How could a leader convince his co-workers to work with him in different Administrations?

I believe the verse of Quran (O ye who believe not say what you do not do is most hateful to God that you say what you do not do) of Surat Al-Saf is quite enough to answer that question.

7. In your opinion, what are the most attractive factors for the creativity of an employee in the company?

The major factor is the working environment along with the continuous development of the skills of the employee. The most important issue in this regard is the feelings of the employee that he is participating in taking decisions which is the role of the leader as I have explained earlier. For your information, the participation of the employee in taking decisions has a magical influence in gathering the whole team around the mission to be accomplished and adopted. Thus, the success of the said mission will approach the final mark.

8. After the long years you have offered in the admin work, what have you learnt in this area, and what would you like to convey to others through your own experience?

Ultimately, I believe the Admin Work is the most difficult types of work. You deal here with human qualifications which their production and capitals are invested in thinking and creation. You don't deal with machines, lands or such alike. You deal with brains and with persons who have their ambitions, personal issues and problems with the field of work. Therefore, dealing fairly and equally with the subordinates is a very important factor. As a leader you should control your personal feelings which would have a major influence in committing the group for team-work. Based on my accumulated previous experiences, I have performed hundreds of personal interviews to attract qualified personnel. The most important condition for the chosen employee is not having experience in work only – which is a requirement but I do not consider it as my first priority. I consider the ability of coping up with the team and with the company in general and whether he is capable to execute the plans of the company or not. You could bring the most experienced personnel in a certain area but, because of conduct issues, his presence with the team that may lead to catastrophes only Allah's knows the extent of its damage if they would occur.

Therefore, and based on a long experience, you could develop the performance of an employee and teach him only if he is ready for that.

It is almost impossible to correct the conduct of an employee. Thus, you shouldn't base your choice for an employee compared with others only on his the long experience. In my view, the creation of an environment and atmosphere, that would help to perform the work, is the major factor of success in business as well as taking care of the subordinates and dealing with their personal and work problems seriously along with modesty and promptitude.

9. An Advice for the category of young employees.

I advice the young people is to invest the phase of youth in doing their best in their work and not to reject any type of work whatever it is. Whatever you do will be a plus to you and you will profit from that in the future. Always be pioneer, initiative, and make clear in the minds of your superiors that you are one of those who could work in any condition at any time, and by that you will encourage them to assign you with more jobs and gain from their expertise. You should not surrender when you are faced with a certain problem and allow it to become an obstacle in the course of your advancement. One of our scholars used to tell us, "If you are faced with a problem, don't stop at it and say a problem that will be solved later), and by The Will of Allah, you will find more than one solutions for it later.

10. At the end of this Interview, What would you like to say to your Colleagues in the Company?

I'd like to advise myself and my colleagues to renew their wills in everything they do. You could turn all what you do - For The Sake of Allah - into rewards just by renewing the will for the good deeds. We lose too many merits for nothing while they are within the reach of our hands. We - as slaves for The Almighty Allah - are rewarded for the Good Wills and commit sins for the Bad Wills.

Prophet Mohammed - May The Prayers and Peace of Allah Be Upon Him - Has said, "Let me tell you a speech and you keep it by your heart, this world is set for four persons, for a person whom Allah Has given money and knowledge, so he fears his Lord in spending it and give part of it - charities - to his relatives and knows that there is right for Allah in it. This person is in the best ranks, and another slave of Allah is given knowledge but no money, so with his honest-will, he says if I had money, I would have done as that person - who does well - and by that he gets the same merits as that person. Another slave of Allah is given money but without knowledge. He spends that money haphazardly, without knowledge. He does not fear his Lord when spending it and he does not give part of it to his relatives. So, this person will be in the worst ranks. Another slave of Allah who is given no money and without knowledge and yet he says, "If I am given money, I'd have done as that person who is doing wrong." So, in accordance with his bad-will, he becomes as sinner as the person whom he nominated." This Hadith is narrated by Al-Tarmazi. Just imagine the quantity of merits you would just get by doing something for the sake and rewards from Allah. If you willed to fulfill that meaning - by working in the company - in order to support yourself, your dependents and to be capable of worshiping The Almighty Allah, you will be rewarded for that by Allah. As per Hadith of Prophet Mohammed - Prayers' And Peace of Allah Be Upon Him - The Muslim's Slave is rewarded by Allah for supporting his family if he willed his spending on them for the sake of Allah. And you will be getting reward as well when you do the same and will to assist - directly or indirectly - in supporting many Muslims' families that their supporters are working in the company, suppliers, customers or otherwise, and by working with seriousness and honesty. The higher the company's profits, the more of opportunities are created for more jobs and good works become plenty. Thus you will be sharing in advancing an Islamic Establishment in this disordered world. The Third Khalifa, Omer Ib Al-Khatib, used to say, "O people you willed your works for the sake of Allah. Whoever accounts his work for the sake of Allah, will be rewarded for his work and for his will."

Final Word

We must stand up and hold ourselves accountable day by day. This world is not a final dwelling, but a bridge we cross to the afterlife. Ali Bin Abi Taleb - May Allah Be Pleased with him - used to say, "People are asleep whenever they die, they wake up." My dear brother you start with holding yourself accountable for dereliction and never rely on this Low-World. I pray for the Almighty Allah to have mercy on us and assemble us in his heaven, exempt us from his punishment, and have mercy on all deceased Muslims. Also, I beg him not take what I have written here against me in the Day-After.
